

SIDNEY W. RIDDLE WEDS MISS DOROTHY TROTTER

Beautiful Home Wedding of Popular Young Couple Celebrated Thursday Morning.

Beautiful and impressive in the simplicity and dignity of a home wedding was that of Miss Dorothy Trotter to Sidney Walker Riddle this morning at 11:30 at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Trotter, on Oak street.

Dr. J. W. Bachman, the veteran pastor of the First Presbyterian church, officiated, using the full ring ceremony. The home is well arranged for wedding scene, in fact no place could have been better adapted outside of the church aisle and altar.

The bride party descended the stairway at the east end of the house, at the foot of which is an archway over the long corridor, which served excellently for an aisle, this led across the house into the library at the west end where the vows were taken in front of an altar erected in the large bay window on the north side. The curtains were covered with southern smilax and the altar was made with palms, Easter lilies and pink snapdragons. The drawing room adjoining the library on the north side was in pink roses and pink and white snapdragons. The large ivory-colored mantelpiece was a bower of flowers.

The banisters of the stairway were covered with southern smilax and the posts were adorned with large baskets of pink and white tulips. The corridor, on the east, was bordered with a profusion of potted ferns, and the aisle was effected with ribbons. The ribbon bearers were Masters D. S. Riddle, Jr., John Thomas Riddle and little Misses Alice Frances Trotter and Martha Riddle.

The dining room was lavishly decorated in pink roses and pink and white sweet peas. As the orchestra played the strains of the wedding march the party entered, the maid of honor coming first—Miss Clara Trotter, the sister of the bride. She was attired in pearl gray and Chinese blue georgette. Her corsage bouquet was violets. Miss Joan Riddle, sister of the bridegroom, wore a combination of gray georgette and velvet. Miss Josephine Whiteside's dress was gray and pink beaded with iridescent beads, and Miss Virginia Webster wore gray and green georgette. All of the bridesmaids wore corsages of violets.

The bride entered with her father, W. H. Trotter, and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, his brother, J. R. Riddle. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue trimmed with braid and having a white vest. Her hat and gloves matched her suit. Her corsage was white roses and pink sweet peas.

The groom wore his regulation military uniform. Following the ceremony a reception was held for the guests present, numbering about one hundred and twenty-five of the relatives and close friends of the parties.

A noon luncheon course was served, and Mr. and Mrs. Riddle left for Austin, Tex., where the groom is a cadet in the United States aviation training school.

The bride is one of the most popular girls in the city, though only scarcely more than a debutante, and comes from one of the oldest families, on her paternal side, in Georgia, and her mother's being equally prominent in Tennessee. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Trotter.

Mr. Riddle is the third son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Riddle, who recently moved from Nashville to Chattanooga to reside. Their family is well known in Alabama and Virginia, where they were originally from.

The presents received by the young bride were many and beautiful, embracing silver, cut glass, china, linen, etc.

The out-of-town guests were: Mrs.

SPRING CROWNS TOWERING TALL

(By Betty Brown.)

A visit to the millinery salons convinces the feminine observer that the out, or rather the up-standing feature of the spring hat crop is the towering tall crown. Every type of hat except the draped turban shows the aspiring top. The particular example sketched above shows a crown of tan caterpillar braid, and attached almost as an afterthought, a military brim of tan taffeta, and two aviating quills.

ST. PAUL'S CHOR TO SING IN SPRING BOWER

Unique Entertainment, Under Direction Prof. Schmidt,
Given in Parish House.

St. Paul's choir is planning a unique entertainment to be given in St. Paul's parish house Thursday evening, April 18. The entertainment will be in the nature of a spring fete and many interesting features are being planned. The keynote of the fete being spring, the hall will present a veritable spring bower, with the other seasons fittingly represented.

The program will center around the giving of Charles Wakefield Cadman's song cycle for four solo voices, "The Morning of the Year." This is one of the later works of this famous American composer and will be performed for the first time in Chattanooga. The parts will be sung by Miss Mary Ward Hatcher, soprano; Miss Margaret McWhorter, contralto; J. Victor Gohl, baritone, and Clifford Johnston, baritone, with Prof. August Schmidt at the piano. Other features of the program are not given out, but it is probable that some of Chattanooga's talented dancers will appear in interpretative roles.

The proceeds of the entertainment will go into the music fund of St. Paul's choir.

WOMEN TO HELP SELL TWO-CENT POTATOES

Committee Council of Defense
Behind Plan—Meet at Courthouse.

Irish potatoes at 2 cents per pound at the Central market Saturday! This is the heartening news of a movement now on hand, through the agency of the local women's committee, council of defense, which founds its basis at the meeting of the organization held Wednesday in the courthouse club room. If plans mature as promised, the stock of 50,000 bushels of Irish potatoes which has been held for higher prices by farmers of Morgan county, together with a large surplus held by farmers of this county, will undoubtedly find ready market.

Announcement was made by Mrs. J. Kruesi, chairman of food conservation for the county. Spirited discussion followed.

Plans for the all-day meeting of the council in collaboration with the convention of demonstrators in home economics now in session were discussed and announcement made concerning the parade and the program and speakers.

Report was given of the state convention recently held at Nashville, Miss. Virginia Pearl Moore, of Nashville, and Miss Margaret Hughes, city agent in home economics, were present and talked along various lines of food conservation. Miss A. Marie Macpherson called attention to the presence of ground glass in foodstuffs and of the disposition of some housewives to waste cornmeal while making use of the flour accompanying the purchase.

Those who were fortunate enough to see the wonderful presentation of "Pilgrim's Progress" in motion picture and lecture by Col. Ray Wednesday evening at the Pilgrim Congregational church, will find tonight's performance even more splendid.

The legend of the Holy Grail is, in substance, the same in all the stories. The legend was "that the precious cup used for the wine at the Last Supper and also used to receive the Savior's blood at the cross, was forever after cherished as the Holy Grail. It was carried from the Holy Land by Joseph of Arimathea and taken first to Gaul and later to Spain. Here it was cherished and guarded by a holy band of "Knights of the Grail." This legend has been immortalized by Sir Thomas Malory and Tennyson. Many are, also, familiar with the painting by Edwin A. Abbey on the walls of the Boston public library, Wagner's "Parsifal" is a spiritualized version of the legend.

Tonight the wonderful tinted motion pictures of this classic of the centuries, with every art of motion picture production, accompanied by appropriate music, will give an evening of rare artistic and literary charm. The impression will be lasting. The prices are the same as last night. No reservations. People were turned away from Johnson City's largest auditorium, it is said.

Winters Class to Meet.

MORE ENLISTMENTS FOR FIFTY-FIRST

Capt. LeRoy H. Watson Explains Opportunities Offered
Men in His Command.

Capt. LeRoy H. Watson, of headquarters company, Fifty-first infantry, U. S. A., reported progress in his work of recruiting for his company Wednesday, which was the third day of his efforts, and he reports the following enlistments or signifying their intention of enlistment:

Glenn J. Slevy, 114 Stringer street.
G. John Krug, 915 William street.
Robert O. Daly, Russell house.
Mansfield C. Petty, Cleveland.
L. E. Barber, 207 Poplar street.
Albert Claude Wilson, Bristol.

Capt. Watson states that many splendid opportunities in the headquarters company of the Fifty-first infantry for occupational specialists are still available. Telephone men, telegraphers, teamsters, carpenters, electricians, band musicians, construction foremen, and men only partly skilled in these various trades, as well as the unskilled laborers, are urged to join the Fifty-first. The organization of headquarters company is unique in that it offers opportunities to men who wish to continue their civilian occupations in the service of their country.

Maj. C. S. Steward, of the Fourth Tennessee infantry, has offered the Armory for a recruiting office for the Fifty-first infantry and Capt. Leroy H. Watson and Lieut. Nathan E. Preston, of headquarters company, Fifty-first infantry will be at the Armory Fourth and Market streets, every day and during the evenings of this week to interview all applicants.

Capt. Watson said that he wished to express his appreciation to the local draft boards, which are exhibiting a splendid co-operative spirit in aiding this regiment to secure enlistments.

"First, it gives you an opportunity to pick your organization and your work, whereas, if you wait until you are drafted you will be sent to an unknown organization and may be placed at work which is distasteful to you."

"Second, this organization will be composed of Chattanooga men. You will be among friends."

"Third, this organization will stay in Chickamauga park until it is ready to sail for France."

"Fourth, you will see active service in the near future."

During March the Civic Center library circulated about 12,000 volumes among the soldiers—almost a book a soldier.

Six thousand went out from the main library and another 6,000 from the various "Ys" and posts.

Fifty per cent of this amount was fiction. Of the remainder the far greater part were books on military subjects.

Chief Librarian C. D. Johnston carried seventy-five military books to one of the "Ys," and within three hours forty-six were distributed.
